Allied Editions is delighted to return to Frieze London with a special presentation at the fair, staged in Regent's Park from 12– 16 October 2022.

Baltic Centre for Contemporary Art and Wysing Arts Centre will be joining the co-curated booth for the first time. Allied Editions is a unique artists' editions collective composed of seven of London's leading not-for-profit arts organisations: Camden Art Centre, Chisenhale Gallery, Institute of Contemporary Arts, Serpentine, South London Gallery, Studio Voltaire and Whitechapel Gallery.

Allied Editions will feature limited edition artworks including prints, ceramics, unique Ink washes, cashmere, glass and photography by international artists. Highlights this year will include new editions by Ai Weiwei, Uma Breakdown, Anthea Hamilton, Chris Ofili, Cornelia Parker, Yoko Ono, Giles Round, Soheila Sokhanvari and Turner Prize winners Helen Cammock, Lubaina Himid and Tai Shani.

Over 100 artworks will be on display with prices ranging from £100 to £15,000. Editions are specially commissioned and donated by the artists to support the galleries' programmes.

Uma Breakdown, Giles Round, Soheila Sokhanvari, Helen Cammock and Tai Shani have longstanding relationships with Wysing and have been invited to contribute to this suite of digital prints and ceramic editions to support Wysing's residency programme. In particular, the editions will support the Donna Lynas Residency, a new initiative (delivered in partnership with Modern Art Oxford, Somerset House Studios and South London Gallery) to support an artist over a period of three years with a bursary of £16,000 a year. Mohammed Sami has created Still Alive, 2022 especially for Whitechapel Gallery to accompany 'The London Open 2022', 30 June – 4 September 2022. The presentation also features editions by Sung Tieu, Lubaina Himid and Graham Little, especially commissioned to mark the 75th anniversary of the Institute of Contemporary Arts.

Bettina Korek, CEO of Serpentine, says: "We're delighted to return to Frieze London with Allied Editions and pleased to welcome two new partners this year, Baltic Centre for Contemporary Art and Wysing Arts Centre. Collaboration is at the heart of everything Serpentine does, and these benefit editions made by artists are an important means of raising vital funds for institutions. As a platform for expanding opportunities for collecting at all levels, Frieze London's commitment to editions helps further Serpentine's mission of building new connections between artists and society."

Bengi Ünsal, Director of Institute of Contemporary Arts, says: "The ICA is delighted to be part of Frieze London 2022 through our special collaboration with Allied Editions. The ICA will be celebrating its 75th anniversary this autumn. To mark this landmark moment we will be launching new editions at Frieze, kindly donated by some of the most progressive and important artists working today. Limited Editions are a great way to support institutions and allow a wider audience the opportunity to collect art. We would like to thank Allied Editions and all our partners for their support towards our future programme and vision for our 75th year and beyond."

Joe Scotland, Director of Studio Voltaire, says: “With increasing reductions in public funding, Allied Editions has provided an essential way for public galleries to raise vital income. These funds have directly contributed to the realisation of landmark exhibitions and innovative learning and commissioning programmes, many of which are free to visit. Our collective editions and programmes offer incredible opportunities for emerging and established collectors to access exciting work by leading international artists.”

Rosie Cooper, Director of Wysing Arts Centre, says: “Wysing Arts Centre is delighted to partner with Allied Editions at Frieze London this Autumn. We are excited to be launching a suite of new Limited Editions, each generously made by artists who have been supported by Wysing through residencies, commissions and studio programmes at our site in rural Cambridgeshire. It is a meaningful way to showcase our work to Frieze’s national and international audience, while raising income for funded residencies that provide time and space for artists to develop their ideas without a fixed outcome and enabling us to find new ways to support artists’ livelihoods at this precarious time.”

Zoé Whitley, Director of Chisenhale Gallery, says: “Allied Editions represents the true ingenuity and interdependence of London's dynamic non-profit visual arts community. The entire endeavour exists because of the mutual respect between artists and the institutions that worked with them at pivotal moments. At the heart of Frieze London thrives an accessible and innovative platform where new works of art connect audiences with both artists' ideas and the spirit of giving back.”
